LATEST DEVELOPMENTS

✦ POLITICS: On 07/05, the HCS-HoR 6+6 Committee, tasked with the preparation of electoral laws, held another meeting in Tripoli, following the one recorded earlier this month. The HoR's Spokesperson, Abdullah Blihaq announced the meeting, confirming the continuation of its work. The content of the talks was not communicated in detail, leaving little information about developments in the committee's debate, or in the discussion on specific subjects in the framework of the electoral process. However, on the following day, HCS member and 6+6 Committee member Fathallah Al-Sariri clarified that the committee had not yet started to discuss the highly debated aspect of presidential candidates' eligibility criteria. Al-Sariri relayed that the Committee was still working on matters related to the parliamentary election and was not yet discussing the presidential one.

On 08/05, members of the 6+6 Committee met in Tripoli with the Head of the HNEC, Imad Al-Sayeh. In a new social media post, Abdullah Blihaq relayed that the talks revolved around technical observations presented by the HNEC about presidential and parliamentary elections, to be taken into account during the Committee's work for the drafting of electoral laws.

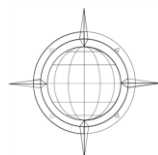

Assessment: The 6+6 Committee continues to operate following its launch in early April, which represented a significant step towards elections in Libya. The Committee has assumed the role of the main institutional instrument for the revival of the electoral process in the current stage. Nonetheless, concrete results are yet to be yielded, potentially raising concerns about possible delays in the drafting of election laws. Further meetings involving the 6+6, like the one with Al-Sayeh, as well as new committee sessions, are to be expected in the upcoming weeks.

✦ DIPLOMACY: On 03/05, the Head of the LNA, Khalifa Haftar, went on an official visit to Italy, where he met with several top officials. Following an initial meeting with the Italian Foreign Minister, Antonio Tajani, on 03/05, Haftar met in Rome with Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni on the following day.

At the center of the talks between Meloni and Haftar were the issues of illegal migration and regional security. According to Italian media, the meeting included a focus on the growing migratory phenomenon, as Italy continues to deal with a growing number of migrants and refugees arriving by sea from North Africa. The two sides also discussed the recent developments in Sudan and the effects that the Sudanese conflict might have on neighboring countries like Libya. Furthermore, the meeting also included Meloni's expression of support for the UNSMIL's initiative to revitalize the political process and promote the holding of elections by the end of 2023. On the same day, Haftar met also with the Italian Defense Minister, Guido Crosetto. They reportedly talked about migrant flows from Libya to Italy and possible risks of destabilization in the country. Italian media relayed that Crosetto addressed the issue of migratory flows' increment and the subject of Wagner Group forces' presence in Libya as a destabilizing factor.

During his visit in Rome, the Head of the LNA met with Italian Interior Minister, Matteo Piantedosi, with whom he discussed bilateral relation and, more specifically, a mechanism for consolidating cooperation in security, combating illegal migration, and training for security forces.

Assessment: Haftar's meetings in Rome confirmed Italy's intention to include the Head of the LNA as an interlocutor in Libya and to maintain relations with the country's eastern as well as with western authorities, especially considering the importance given by Rome to the problem of illegal migration and in light of recently growing cases of human smuggling from eastern Libya. It is worth noting that in late January 2023 a top-level delegation of the Italian government, including Giorgia Meloni, had met with the GNU's leadership in Tripoli but had not visited Libya's east.

✦ MILITARY: This week saw several meetings involving important Libyan and foreign military actors, aiming at the stabilization and strengthening of Libya's defense institutions. On 03/05, a delegation of US military officials, including the US Defense Attaché to Libya, met with a delegation of GNU MoD's military representatives, including the MoD's Chief of Staff of Ground Forces and JMC member, Al-Fitouri Greibel, the Commander of the MoD's 444th Brigade, the Commander of the MoD's 51st Brigade, and others. They discussed relations between Libyan and US military institutions and the possibility of their development. It is worth noting that the day before a US Defense delegation had already met with the GNU's Chief of Staff, Mohamed Al-Haddad. The 03/05 meeting confirmed Washington's intention to consolidate its relations with the Tripoli-based MoD and evidently cooperate with it for the security of Libya and its capital.

On the same day, a French delegation including the French Defence Attaché to Libya met in Benghazi with a group of top-level LNA officials, including the LNA's Chief of Staff, Abdulrazzaq Al-Nadhuri, the LNA's Air Force Chief of Staff, Mohamed Al-Manfur, and the LNA's Navy Chief of Staff, Shuaib Saber. They discussed the development and training of the military institution. In a statement communicating the holding of this meeting, the LNA General Staff's Media Center stressed the importance of training as focus of talks with the French side.

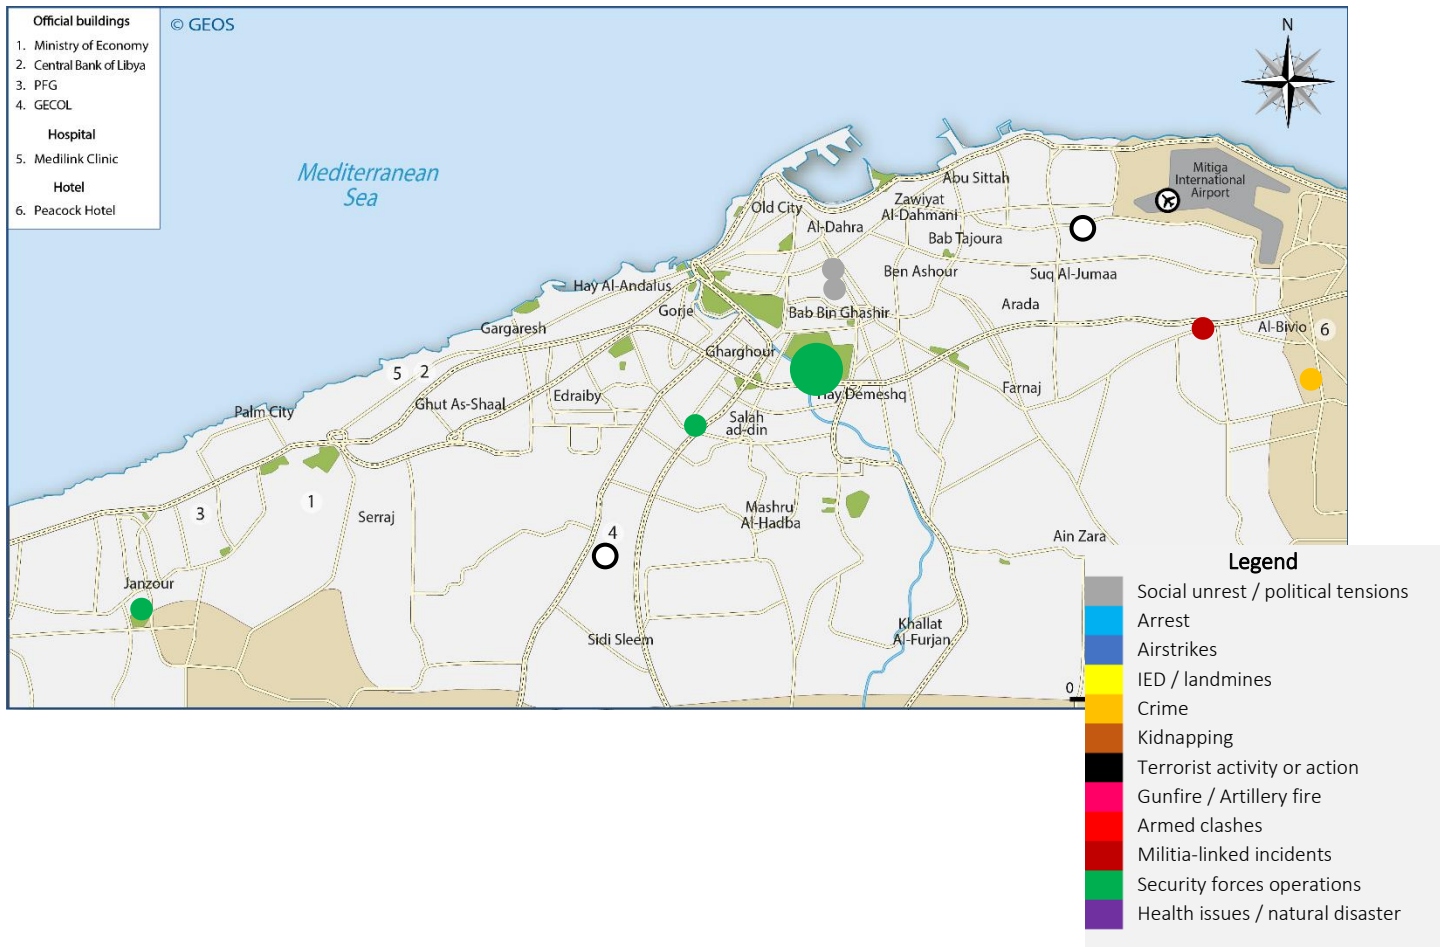

On 06/05, the LNA's Navy Chief of Staff met in Benghazi with the GNU MoD's Navy Chief of Staff, during a visit of the latter and his accompanying delegation. They discussed efforts to unify Libya's military institution as well as to develop administrative and procedural plans to implement such reunification process.

Assessment: The meetings of French and US delegations with military officials signaled the interest of those international actors in consolidating Libya's defense and maintain dialogue with the country's military institutions, also considering recently emerging threats to security in the North African region and on the background of a possible reunification process. The meeting between GNU MoD and LNA Navy delegations, like those between LNA and GNU Chiefs of Staff in the previous month, confirmed the persistence of dialogue between the two sides even though a full reunification of Libya's military institution does not appear likely in the short term.

SECURITY: This week, western Libya witnessed a crackdown on illegal migration as several security operations were performed by security forces aimed at countering human smuggling in the region. On 03/05, a number of illegal migrants from African countries were arrested for illegal migration, and a Gambian national was arrested, accused of human smuggling, in Sabratha. On 06/05, 23 Pakistani nationals and a Libyan national were arrested after security forces raided a human trafficking hideout in Misrata. The migrants are accused of illegal entry into Libyan territory, and the Libyan civilian is accused of human trafficking. On the same day, at least 100 illegal migrants were arrested farther south, when the SSA raided a migration hideout in the Wadi Zamzam area.

Assessment: The operations recorded this week highlighted the strong presence of smuggling activity in areas along the Libyan coast. Similar activities are likely to continue in Tripolitania, and possibly in other parts of Libya. It is worth noting that, while providing law enforcement, such operations might produce a risk of tensions between security forces and criminal groups and could lead to sporadic clashes as they are conducted.

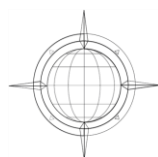

SECURITY: This week, the situation in Zawiya returned to calm after the heavy protests held in the city last week, when thousands of demonstrators protested by blocking the Coastal Road and setting fires. On 05/05, an armed convoy was deployed in the city, belonging to forces affiliated to the ‘Committee of 15’ formed by the GNU’s Chief of Staff, Mohamed Al-Haddad, and composed of various representatives of Zawiya including members of the Youth movement, and security and military leaders of Zawiya. This force is reportedly tasked to secure the city, in response to demonstrators’ grievances over the deteriorating security situation of Zawiya.

On the same day, hundreds of civilians demonstrated in Zawiya, announcing the continuation of their sit-in in Zawiya’s Martyrs’ Square and their support for the ‘Committee of 15’. Demonstrators demanded for the residents of the city to be appropriately represented in efforts to restore the city’s stability and fight against issues such as corruption, drug trafficking, and general crime. They announced that they would continue their sit-in until their demands are met.

Assessment: Similar or even larger protests are likely to recur in the near future if no significant security improvement is achieved in Zawiya. However, the presence of the abovementioned newly deployed security force might bring stability to the area and therefore could appease the recently witnessed tensions.

Outlook

- Tensions between armed groups which can lead to targeted attacks (drive-by shootings, kidnappings) and escalate into armed clashes, notably in the localities west and south of Tripoli and along the western coastal road;
- Tensions linked to the continued presence of mercenaries and foreign armed forces;
- Risk of sporadic clashes between security forces and criminal groups during anti-criminal operations;
- Risk of demonstrations linked to insecurity, the deterioration of socio-economic conditions, and the ongoing political divide;
- Risk of blockades of oil sites;
- Latent terrorist risk.
